50% bonus during 1-day presale, July 13th, 2017 @ 00:00 UTC

Washington, DC – CoinJob, a distributed labor marketplace for computer-based work featuring the Jobi, an Ethereum-based digital token, announced terms for its upcoming Initial Coin Offering (ICO), scheduled for July 14th, 2017 at 00:00 UTC. The company hopes to raise up to 60,000ETH, which will fund continued development of the technology platform, worker and task-provider acquisition, and operational costs.

The total number of tokens available for the ICO is limited to 60,000,000. The smallest fraction is 0.00001 XCJ.

The Jobi token (XCJ) is an Ethereum-based digital token that allows transactions to occur on the CoinJob platform. On the CoinJob platform, tokens will be used as a medium of exchange between workers and task-persons, and as reward for successful arbitration.

Background: The CoinJob marketplace is an online platform where task-persons can post work and workers can complete tasks from the comfort of their computer. One launched, projects will focus on software development, web development, graphic design, financial modeling, and other tasks that need nothing more than a computer and expertise to complete. The company aims to compete with Gigster and other task-based labor platforms by charging lower fees and offering automatic arbitration for task-persons and workers. The organization is based in Washington, D.C.
